THIS IS NATIONAL NEWSPAPER WEEK.

What does this mean to you and me? Plenty. This week has been set aside by President Richard Nixon as a seven-day observance in recognition of the dedicated efforts of the nation's newspapermen in their efforts to present the complete news in depth and objectively.

Just as you or your spouse go to work today, and endeavor to do a decent and acceptable job, this too, is the function of the Carmel Valley Outlook. We strive to bring you all the news, the complete news, and an objective interpretation of the news.

Not so, many say.

Why?

Possibly the foregoing statement comes through a little vague to you. Let us explain.

The Carmel Valley Outlook is a weekly newspaper, we do not have the advertising capacity to publish daily, as much as we would like to. Therefore, the Outlook must rely on a limited staff, which means our readers are deprived of a newspaper on a daily scale. We, therefore, ask each reader to submit the viewpoints, notes of general interest to the public and coming events. With our limited staff, we are just unable to cover every event which we may deem newsworthy.

Complaints have filtered into this office from concerned Valley residents who feel we are either failing to cover pertinent news, or have purposely neglected to cover a specific Valley event. This is not so.

As we say, we are limited in our coverage, but are sincerely concerned with everything which occurs in the Valley.

Please help us. Send in your news release from your club or organization; your letter to the editor, your hard news scoop. We want this information, and will readily accept it upon verification or clarification.

Through natural attrition, we have lost a few employees. Many of these were very well known in Carmel Valley, and our readers have expressed their displeasure at their being replaced. This is a natural phenomenon which occurs in almost every business, and it, to say the least, is very unfortunate. But, such is life.

The Donrey Media Group purchased the holdings of the Carmel Valley Outlook and the Carmel Pine Cone just a few short months ago. Unfortunately some of our subscribers have felt that the new company is "trying to adversely change things."

This is not the case, and we take advantage of National Newspaper Week to exemplify our stand.

The Carmel Valley Outlook is a locally operated and oriented news media. We want to report all the local news to the local residents. This is our first and foremost dedication. If we, in your eyes, are failing in this dedication, we ask you, the public, to assist us.

We have many fine columnists who write in your paper weekly or once a month. Often, as the circumstances dictate, we are unable to publish, in total, the columnists' entire column. This is indeed unfortunate, but is dictated by necessity.

We feel our newspaper and its employees are the best, but, like any conscientious business, we want to be even better.

Any news to report, just call us. Information for one of our columnists, call them. A complaint... call us. Tom Lemmon, publisher, and myself, are available anytime to hear your complaints and suggestions. Our office number during normal business hours is 624-0133.

Please, help us to make this a complete community newspaper. We are here to serve you. We want to serve you—that's our business.

WILLARD T. BRANSON Supervisor, Fifth District

One of the most demanding offices in a county is that of the district attorney. Essentially, his office has three major functions to fill and we will try to broadly outline them for our readers.

Bearing in mind that famous quotation that "justice is the guardian of liberty," the first duty is to see that justice is done, etc.

Our district attorney, William Curtis, has brought a great deal of energy to this office. It has been my pleasure to work alongside him at various times. For instance, at San Francisco I witnessed a day in court when Mr. Curtis and Mr. Barnes, assistant district attorney, were pressed to the very limits of endurance without losing their equanimity. On another occasion, Mr. Curtis left a dinner at his home to counsel a teenager during what could have been the most critical time in his life. Our district attorney spent over three hours in pleading the merits of the teenager's own decision. It brought into sharp focus the fact that while the law is the law—the depth of perception and empathy with which it is applied determines the quality of the man who must apply it.

If a given case requires it, in doing justice, the district attorney, through his deputy, acts as the public prosecutor.

The office of the district attorney is a quasi-judicial office, in that the district attorney decides what charges will be filed. Under existing law in California, if the district attorney does not concur, then criminal charges cannot be filed in the courts, absent the intervention of the attorney general of the state of California.

In Monterey County, there are over 50,000 criminal complaints filed each year, not including parking tickets. Of that 50,000 approximately 36,000 are traffic tickets.

Because of a large transit population in different areas within the county, Monterey County has an arrest rate which is much higher than one would normally expect to find in a county of 250,000 people. Obviously, this higher arrest rate means a great deal more work for the district attorney's office.

The second duty of the district attorney is to collect money from absent parents. This work centers itself around the children who are on welfare, or who are in danger of going on welfare. In the past two and one-half years, the amount of collections have increased fifty-five percent to a total of over one and one-half million dollars. This program has been successful in reducing welfare expenditures, and is effecting a substantial savings to the tax payers. It is anticipated that by the end of this calendar year, something over one million eight hundred thousand dollars will be collected for these children.

The third duty of the district attorney is to detect crime and arrest criminals. This function is primarily the responsibility of the local law enforcement agencies. Quite often, local law enforcement agencies will request the assistance of the district attorney in investigating crimes.

One of the areas where significant impact has been made, concerns the hard narcotics problem. Within the district attorney's office is the special activities unit, which has been concerning itself primarily with the non-user seller of hard narcotics. This unit, in conjunction with local law enforcement agencies, and state and federal narcotics agents, has been extremely successful arresting people charged with this type of crime. The most recent significant arrest took place involving 41 people who were arrested primarily on charges of sales of heroin and cocaine. These cases are presently pending. Additionally, the investigative staff investigates police officers and corruption of public officials.

Another major investigative effort of the district attorney involves Soledad State Prison, and the crimes which are committed there.

Other duties of the district attorney are to advise the grand jury and to investigate and file suit when deemed appropriate in consumer fraud cases, and to initiate and provide for public nuisance abatements. Also, another obligation is to carry out any inter county investigations deemed necessary, or called for, by the grand jury.

Because of the duty of the office, the district attorney must be admitted to practice law before the supreme court of the state.

There are three offices of the district attorney of Monterey County; one being in Salinas, one in Monterey, and one in King City. The total staff is 65% people with an amount budgeted for fiscal year 1973-1974 of $964,335. At any given time, there are approximately 2,000 active criminal cases in the office, and approximately 5,000 family support files.

In addition to the above, the district attorney is also very active in training programs for law enforcement personnel.

This supervisor feels that in Monterey County, we have such a district attorney. It is certain that he won't please all of the people, of course, however, he has brought new impetus to the office, and it should be, also, as certain that he is doing an excellent job for the vast majority who have given him their trust.

mentally gifted minor program questioned

By BOB KENNEDY

CARMEL VALLEY Unified School District's Mentally Gifted Minor educational program has raised the question from the District Trustees, "What does the program (MGM) accomplish? What is its function?"

The question was raised last night at the School District meeting at the Carmel Middle School library, after a report was presented by Mrs. Louise Fisher on the program. Mrs. Fisher is a coordinator and resource teacher for the gifted program.

Mrs. Fisher, in her status report on the progress of the program, told members present that presently there are 190 identified Mentally Gifted Minors in the school district. The state requirement for this status is three percent, but she said the amount of gifted students in the district is six percent of the student body.

There are approximately 50 students in the special category. Middle School has 54, and the remainder of the 190 are in the elementary school grades.

Apparently, not completely understanding the state funded program, and questioning what benefit these gifted students are receiving, the board of education suggested the program in other counties be studied, and a report be made back in two or three months. "We should, from the reaction of the board, look into and see what is being accomplished in other districts," Dr. Charles R. Snorf, board clerk suggested.

MOLLIE WILLIAMS, student member of the board, when asked her opinion on the program, replied that she was listed as a Mentally Gifted Minor, but "it's in title only. I have received nothing tangible, unless it helps me get into college -- that would be tangible," she said.

In another business matter, Hugh Smith, an amateur astronomer was warmly received when he proposed donating a telescope and help construct an observatory at Carmel High School.

Smith noted that there is presently no astronomy class available to the students. Calling himself a "very old friend of the school district," he said he would give the district a 15-inch mirror and telescope, and with the district's assistance would construct a 14-foot observatory with dome. He suggested it could be used not only by high school students, but lower grade students and the public as well. "Properly routed," he said, "it could be of interest to the high school and the community."

Hopefully, he added, amateurs and would-be amateurs would be able to use the facility.

The board told Smith they would work closely with him and the district in an effort to build the small observatory.

branson defends rights of property owners

MONTEREY COUNTY Supervisor Willard Branson, representing the 5th District, raised the question this week of what are a property owner's rights regarding building and improvements on his own property.

Branson's question was raised during a heated discussion between the board of supervisors and property owners of Del Monte Forest during a hearing Tuesday on an environmental impact report presented on a proposed condominium in Shepherd's Knoll Subdivision in the 4th District.

Property owners of that area appeared in opposition to the development, raising questions as to the environmental impact, water, drainage, visual impact, and the removal of more than 500 Monterey Pine and oak trees. Also, members of the audience objected to the removal of 50,000 cubic yards of earth from the knoll which will be required before construction can begin.

Members of the Monte Vista Property Owners and the Del Monte Forest Association voiced strong opposition to the condominium, primarily because they felt the study was incomplete, and two addenda to the environmental impact report have not been available to residents to study and consider.

At the recommendation of Supervisor Roger Poyner, the board of supervisors agreed to continue the public hearing until 1:30 p.m. Oct. 30.

Supervisor Branson asked the audience, "What do we say if they (property owners) do have a reasonable plan? Can we say no to the Constitution of the United States of America and tell them no, you can't build on your property?"

"We're going through the most radical change in time right now," he added.

Branson was in total agreement with Supervisor Warren Church, when he said most people who live in Monterey County came here because they wanted to live here, and why should the county's residents object to new families moving into the area. He added that others should have the same rights as residents living here.

Property owners, in their opposing arguments, appeared in fact to be saying, "we don't want any further development in the area."

Branson, who has been privately studying the county's population growth, told the group he is attempting to determine what the county's "holding capacity" is.

"We should consider our holding capacity," he said, "and determine if we've reached it."

The question was raised whether condominiums were a wise way to build new housing. The board told the audience condominiums utilized considerably less ground area than single family dwellings, thereby preserving more of the county's open space.

Supervisors also pointed out the environmental impact report submitted may be unnecessary since the city of Monterey is presently considering the annexation of Shepherd's Knoll to the city.

The continued hearing on the EIR also postponed action on a hearing on a proposed zoning ordinance reclassifying Shepherd's Knoll subdivision.

villas carmel plan under study

The Monterey County Planning Commission still appears dissatisfied with a proposed new subdivision in Carmel Valley.

Commissioners were presented with a map of the proposed development by developer Carl Hooper Wednesday.

Hooper explained that he plans to install a sewage treatment operation on the Villas Carmel Del Pacifico site, which is located on the north side of Carmel Valley Road just west of St. Philip's Lutheran Church. He added that the engineering firm of George Bestor and Associates are the local promoters.

The commission accepted Hooper's plan for consideration, but several of the members expressed concern over the water and sewage facilities. Hooper said it is the Carmel Valley Views Ltd. Company's plan to install a sewage treatment plant which could serve 1,000 people.

His design plan calls for 206 condominiums and 254 homes on the 497-acre parcel of land. A large portion of it is on a sloping area. The density, coupled with the sloping area, which Hooper has proposed to spray with effluent has the commission concerned.

"We're concerned with the sewer and water facilities," Commissioner Ed DeMars pointed out to the audience. "These shouldn't be glossed over."

Hooper further defended his firm's proposed housing construction by telling the county planners that there is an evident need in Carmel Valley and also other areas for more housing.

"There is a need for lots," he said, "and there is an established need for condominiums."

He added that it was not his intention to construct on all the proposed sites at one time, but that they would be spread out over a 8-10 year period.

"We know that we will have to solve the sewage and water problem," Hooper said. "we have to accept that."

Hooper said all he was asking the planning commission for was their opinion as to whether or not the general outline of the plan was acceptable.

The commission decided to hold the matter over for further study.

In another matter before the Planning Commission, construction of a commercial building at Carmel Rancho Shopping Center was approved. The commission also approved the off-street parking and design of the building owned by Frederick Stanley.

celebrity golf list growing

The list is growing for the fifth annual Celebrity Golf tournament which will be held this year Nov 17-18 at the world famous Rancho Canada Golf Club in Carmel Valley.

The increasing list of celebrities who have confirmed they will attend now includes Doug McClure and Clint Eastwood, two popular stars of the screen.

The annual event is held each year to help purchase athletic equipment and to sponsor youth sports activities on the Monterey Peninsula.

Other celebrities who have said they will attend the two-day event include baseball stars Joe Rudi, Sal Bando, Rollie Fongersa, Bobby Bonds and Ron Bryant, and Hollywood celebrities Ron Ely, Efrem Zimbalist Jr., and Carmel Valley's William Windom.

Invitations are still available at the Holiday Inn, Carmel, where the stars will stay during the tournament, and at Rancho Canada and the Celebrity Golf office, 373-8331. Entry fee is $100.

Admission is $3, and it is good for both days.

odello land lease made

At Monday's meeting of the Carmel Sanitary District board of directors, it was discovered that the Odello brothers had signed a long-term lease contract with the Omega Corporation of Kansas City involving the eastern half of the Odello artichoke fields.

The board had already approved a contract on Sept. 17 which allowed for an effluent disposal study on the Odello property.

But the addendum prepared by the Odellos' attorney and submitted at the evening session, asked the directors to acknowledge the Odellos' recent contract with the Omega Corporation and approve other amendments to the Sept. 17 contract.

It requested the district not to delay or defer development of the eastern land without instituting condemnation proceedings within 60 days of Jan. 1, 1974, the date when the corporation assumes control of the land.

Attorney Tom Hudson said the contract between the Odellos and Omega was signed within the last week. He asked the board not to accept the addendum before determining what type of agreement had been reached between the Odellos and James Greer, a representative of the corporation.

Hudson also told the board the Monterey Peninsula Regional Parks District had been considering purchase of the eastern half of the Odello artichoke fields, though the corporation's intentions are as yet unclear and no price has been placed on the property.

After much discussion, the board agreed to see what the Thursday meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Regional Parks District produced. Eben Whittlesey, the board's attorney, said he would contact Theodore Labhard, attorney for the Odellos, as soon as possible, to clarify the corporation's intentions and its apparent objections to the contract.

The addendum is written so that the corporation could exclude the sanitary district from the eastern half of the Odello land, and thereby frustrate attempts to conduct an effluent disposal study on this area. To conduct such a study of this land, the corporation would have to waive the provisions of the addendum.

The board was unanimous in rejecting these modifications of the original contract.

An effluent disposal study is soon to begin on the western portion of the Odello Ranch, and that program is not in jeopardy.

A proposal to annex part of Rancho Rio Vista in Carmel Valley, and modifications of several sewer lines in the Carmel Views area was also discussed.

About 30 persons, residents of Rancho Rio Vista, would like to be annexed by the sanitary district. A majority of the people, including many seasonal residents, consider septic tanks adequate and do not desire annexation.

The laying of sewer lines is not expected to be a problem. The Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) has suggested that people who would like to join the district be allowed to do so, and that the roads in the area also be placed under the district's control.

LAFCO objects to any roads and lots remaining outside the district because this would create islands inside Rancho Rio Vista, but the board disagreed.

The board voted unanimously to allow residents interested in annexation to submit maps and other required materials at the board's next meeting.

Clayton Neill, Carmel city engineer, presented his recommendations for changes in five sewer lines to be constructed in Carmel Views.

Neill said the expected $30,000 in maintenance costs would be greatly reduced because new equipment would not have to be purchased to maintain these lines, and greater access to these areas would also be created, if his proposed changes in the original plan were accepted.

Max Drewien, manager of the Carmel Sanitary District, said some reduction in expenditures may result with the changes, but more equipment is needed.

A resolution, granting both private maintenance of some sewer lines in Carmel Views and Neill's amendments to his plan, was adopted by the board.

The board also approved additional funds for the monitoring contract requested by Kenneth Jones, Regional Director of the State Regional Water Quality Control Board.

His agency wants to gather samples of the subtitle area at the bottom of Carmel Bay, near the outfall, at depths ranging from 20 to 60 ft.

author to lecture on wildlife preservation

The extinct Dodo is the symbol used by both Gerald Durrell's Jersey Wildlife Preservation Trust on the Island of Jersey and SAFE (Save Animals from Extinction) with headquarters in New York City. The reason is evident: both organizations are dedicated to the idea that there shall be no more extinct animals and that the breeding of endangered species should be encouraged by proper care and feeding, and under the most ideal conditions possible. This of course takes money.

Gerald Durrell is at present about half way through a very strenuous lecture tour of the United States and Eastern Canada to try to raise some of that money. The Monterey Peninsula is fortunate that its Friends of the Sea Otter organization headed by Margaret Owings was known to him and he wanted to make a side trip here to see for himself these fascinating mammals once thought to be extinct.

Mr. Durrell was born in India but spent his boyhood on the Island of Corfu which he described in My Family and Other Animals. In order to finance his expensive obsession with saving animals from extinction he has written many delightful animal stories, mostly about the trials and tribulations of collecting. These include The Overloaded Ark, A Zoo in My Luggage, Two in the Bush, Catch Me a Colobus, and his latest A Bevy of Beasts. His long suffering wife, Jackie, who has shared most of the adventure and plain hard work of caring for wild animals while moving them from their native habitat to the Zoo, has also written of her experiences in Beasts in My Bed.

Gerald Durrell is a superb lecturer often featured on BBC television, and BBC has also helped sponsor filming his collecting of birds, beasts and reptiles in various countries of the world. During the lecture here he will draw quick sketches of the specie being described and will also show a film of the Zoo in Jersey which he made this past summer.

Tickets for the lecture at Monterey Peninsula College Theatre on Sunday, Nov. 4 at 3 p.m. are being sold through the mail. They are $25 for Patron which includes an Associate membership in SAFE and an opportunity to meet Mr. Durrell at the Thunderbird Bookstore from 5:30 to 7 p.m. that afternoon; $5 for regular tickets, and $2 for students.

All are tax deductible. Checks should be made payable to SAFE, International, and mailed with a self-addressed stamped envelope to Committee for SAFE, Box 2, Carmel Valley, 93924.

quail lodge adds restaurant

The opening of $1 million addition to Quail Lodge has been announced by Edgar Haber, president of the Lodge and of the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club -- The Covey Restaurant and cocktail lounge, conference meeting rooms and administrative offices.

The restaurant faces on one of the club's lakes, with a fountain, a bridge and fairways as background. The continental haute cuisine will feature local seafood, "epicurean" meat entrees and "connoisseur wines."

Haber has appointed Roger Nicolas as manager and maitre d'hotel of the Covey. Nicolas was formerly with La Grenouille Restaurant in New York City, and later with Gallatin's in Monterey, and most recently associated with Del Monte Lodge and Club 19 in Pebble Beach.

summer morning in the valley

By ANNE DE MARCHI

AFTER THE SUMMER solstice has passed, the hot winds of the inner valleys override the sea breezes, and the world by noon vibrates in the insistent sun.

Now the early mornings are warm on the back and even by six o'clock the hummingbirds are everywhere whirring and darting at flowers. Sometimes they sit to rest on a small branch, an almost incongruous act but creating a charming vignette. The black lizards lie on the stones absorbing morning warmth and seem so lethargic that one can almost touch them. A passage of a snake is noted in the movement of the grass.

The valley has changed. The dark green oaks still march up the mountains and deep into the canyons but now they are in counter color to the flaxen grasses. There is a special beauty to ripe grasses, a warmth in color that takes on the great essence of the earth and its fruitfulness.

As the dawn plunges across the mountain the grass is rosy with light. The pink glow moves downward and recedes with the daylight but is constantly in change. The coolness of the oaks and chaparral are adjuncts to the warmth of the grass and a balance to the warm light.

THE SWALLOWS COME in the early summer morning to ride the air currents in the valley, playing in graceful turns and swoops, faster and faster in aerial games. Just where they live is a question but their morning ritual flights are a joy to behold. The hawk watches them as he slowly rides his private winds or sits on the dead branches of the oak to survey the sunny valley. Unmindful, the thrasher creates his involved song of elegance and summer splendor. He will spend hours on some high perch heralding the morning with rapture.

The spring flowers fade now; the running waters have gone on to the river and the sea; the sound of the frogs is a memory and as the days and the earth moves, the light becomes all vital now, so charged with power to describe it is inconceivable. To compare it with the winter light is to say it has become alive, luminous.

When dawn comes on a July or August morning, it is almost as though a firecracker had burst and its brilliance had scattered over the valley. Each dry thistle is illuminated; the shadows are etched and all things take on a deeper tone.

The days of ripening are at hand; the fruit thickens and mellow; the seeds swell and burst; the cicada sings in the light welcoming the heat.

catholic diocese plans workshops

From "Human Liberation" to "Creative Prayer," a variety of workshops will be included in the 1973 Religious Education Institute planned by the Catholic Diocese of Monterey for Saturday, Oct. 13, at Notre Dame High School in Salinas.

Catholics from all parts of the four counties which make up the Monterey Diocese are expected to participate in Institute '73, which has as its theme, "Creation: A Continuing Process."

The Rev. Kenan B. Osborne, an instructor at the Franciscan School of Theology in Berkeley, will open the day with a keynote address on this theme, and will also conduct one of the twelve workshops -- "Scriptural Bases for Creativity -- A Challenge to Today's Teacher."

Other workshops and their leaders are the following: "Creative Prayer" -- Rev. James Burdick, Assoc. Pastor, Old Mission, San Juan Bautista, and Sr. Ruth Edwards, SND, Director, Notre Dame House of Prayer, Carmel.

"Creative Religious Education Via Video Tape" -- Rev. Philip Abinante, St. Francis Xavier, Seaside, and Rev. Dennis Gilbert, St. Angela's, Pacific Grove.

"Creative Problem Solving in the Classroom" -- Rita Mattei, Parish Director of Religious Education, Holy Cross, Santa Cruz.

"Models for Adult Learning" -- Sr. Theresa Nederhiser, OLVM, Consultant for Adult Education, Diocese of Sacramento.

"Materials, Methods and Approaches for Teaching Mexican-Americans" -- Rev. Victor Farrell, Our Lady of the Assumption, Watsonville; Rev. Eleutherio Sanz, Our Lady of Refuge, Castroville; Sr. Teresa Padilla, SA, Assumption Parish, Watsonville.

"Communication -- The Key to Effective Teaching" -- Janet Hurley, Human Relations Consultant, Monterey.

"Human Liberation" -- Joan Ohanneson, writer and producer of "WOMAN," a multi-media resource from TeleKETICS.

"The Wonder of Creation -- Mysticism and Wonderology" -- Rev. Charles Moore, teacher at the University for Man and Santa Catalina School for Girls, Monterey.

"The Young Child -- Created in Faith" -- Sr. Karen Stern, SHF, Consultant for Preschool Education, Archdiocese of San Francisco.

"When I Was a Child...Now That I Am a Man" -- Sr. Gladys Guenther, SHF, Coordinator of Religious Education, St. Francis Xavier, Seaside.

"A Place To Learn, A Place To Pray -- Creating Celebrations for the Classroom" -- Rev. Thomas Kieffer, Orat., Coordinator of Religious Education, Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey.

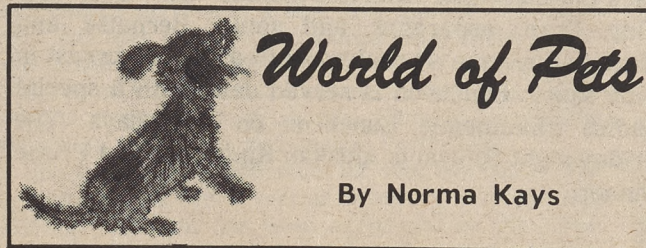

The Institute will begin at 9 a.m., with the workshops repeated in the afternoon so that each participant may attend two workshops. Those attending are asked to bring their own lunches, and coffee will be provided.

At 4 p.m., a special Eucharistic celebration is planned, with Rev. Jerry McCormick of Watsonville, Bonnie Gartshore of Pacific Grove, and Sr. Janet Thill, OLVM, Assoc. Diocesan Director of Religious Ed., in charge.

will be the principal celebrant at the celebration, and Rev. Victor Farrell, Diocesan Superintendent of Schools, will be the homilist.

Persons wishing to attend the Institute may send the $3 registration fee to the Office of Education, P.O. Box 350, Monterey, or may register at the door on Oct. 13 for a $3.50 fee.

World of Pets

By Norma Kays

You may have read recently that the SPCA has signed an agreement with the City of Carmel concerning animal control. Highlights of the agreement are:

1) The SPCA will pick up any and all animals collected by Carmel's Animal Control Officer, at a central location.

2) An impound fee of $15 for unlicensed animals and $10 for licensed animals will be assessed from the owners of the animals picked up.

3) The owner will be charged a $2.50 per day per animal boarding fee.

4) SPCA services will be available every day except Sunday. Pickups will be made at 4 p.m.

5) The SPCA's Humane Education Program will be available to the Carmel Unified School District.

6) The SPCA will receive $1500 for the fiscal years 1973-1974. As you read these highlights, which one stands out most to you? Is it No. 6? Let's look at this one -- $1500 a year is $125-mo., hardly a staggering sum when you consider that the SPCA's budget is approximately $10,000 a month and growing all the time.

Is it No. 2? My father used to say "The surest way to get people to obey the laws (laws made for their well-being and benefit by men they have elected) is to hit them where it hurts the most -- their pocketbooks. Anyone who has ever paid a large fine for speeding would have to agree with this philosophy. The law says your pet (s) must be licensed and under your control. When one of my dogs was recently impounded (through my inadvertent negligence) I was happy to pay the fee for his return, but you can bet it won't happen again if I can help it.

Is it No. 3? Your dog has to be fed and watched over while in someone else's care. We, as pet owners know how expensive it is to feed animals these days.

The most outstanding point in my opinion is No. 5. Humane education in schools is the only way we are ever going to effect any lasting and meaningful aid to helpless animals. Until all people feel remorse at needless suffering, our world is lacking something. The only way we can be attuned to a situation is by understanding it. To understand it logically is only half the battle -- we must understand it from a humane standpoint also. The SPCA's Humane Education Program has this aim in mind. Although they are dealing with animals, their prime concern is people. It is people who determine what happens to animals. Once they realize the rewards behind humane treatment of all life, there will no longer be a need for animal shelters.

A FEAST FOR your eyes as well as your palate .. the lavish cheese platter served at the Carmel Wine Cellar Restaurant is a beautiful treat for an afternoon in Carmel. I watched recently as first lettuce, then six different imported cheeses, salami, fresh fruit, olives, green peppers, pickles and a variety of crackers were piled high before the delicious and colorful display was served. This is just one of the special treats at this new Carmel Restaurant opened by Bill Oates and Nelson Foreman, owners of Carmel Vintage Shoppe on Dolores. Bill envisions the cheese platter as a "beautiful way to spend the afternoon in Carmel ... combined with a bottle of wine and the pleasant company." Lunch has already become so popular at the Carmel Wine Cellar Restaurant that Bill suggests it is wise to get there for lunch before 12:30 p.m.

For those not already familiar with her dinner menu, specialty of the house is Tournedos of Beef which is smothered with onions and mushrooms and topped with melted Monterey Jack Cheese. Other favorites include Veal Oscar with King Crab, asparagus and sauce Bernaise and Chicken Supreme -- boneless stuffed chicken breast in wine sauce. Luncheon is served daily with a special Ladies Champagne Luncheon on Thursdays. The Friday night Special is Alaskan King Crab and Prime Dinner.

A LUXURIOUS NEW restaurant just opened this week in Carmel Valley. The Covey at Quail Lodge has its dining room divided into three cozy areas at three different elevations ... overlooking a lake with the charming bridge crossing over it. Eighteen different entrees are part of the delectable haute cuisine according to restaurant manager Roger Nicolas. Locally caught fresh fish is featured along with only the freshest of vegetables! Reservations are necessary so call 624-2743. The Covey at Quail Lodge is just three miles out Carmel Valley Road.

Inn, Monterey ... "Briley and Branch" with Jeff Gilkinson keeps the crowds coming. Pat Briley has composed more than 18 recorded songs and has appeared in nightclubs throughout the country. Judy Branch has been on several television shows and has appeared at the Playboy Clubs in San Francisco, London and Montreal in addition to other nightclubs throughout the United States. Classic finesse is the best description of Jeff Gilkinson on the bass, cello, banjo and harmonica.

RECENTLY FROM SAN FRANCISCO the "Sweet Beginnings" is a dynamic six-member Rock-Show Group now appearing in the Serra Room of the Holiday Inn, Carmel. The two lead singers, Connie Martindale and David Reign show young fresh talent at its best! Both have toured the United States and Europe and have had numerous recording and television appearances. Another member of the group to watch is Chris Cooper on guitar and violin. He holds a degree in music and last worked with the group "Buttermilk Sky." Chris has an extensive musical background covering virtually all styles of music from jazz to country western. The "Sweet Beginnings" performs Wednesday through Sunday from 9 p.m. to 1:30 p.m.

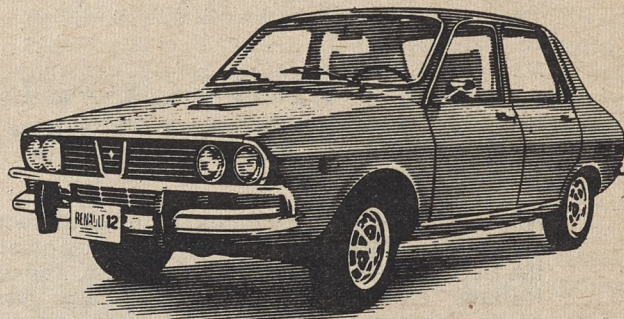

SAMPLE THE DELICIOUS relish tray while you soak in the atmosphere at the Mission Ranch and decide which entree you'll have. The view of the Carmel River and Point Lobos is enhanced by the historic Monterey Cypress trees planted when the Mission Ranch was a dairy. The actual dining room was once the creamery, now there is an open fire with the flames dancing to the strains of soft music while you dine. I recommend the English Lamb Chops with mint jelly or the Prime Rib of Beef Au Jus with Horseradish.

JERRY AND SIOUX are not only long-time favorites of Peninsula residents but of visitors and American troops stationed overseas as well. Their top quality entertainment is at the Outrigger Restaurant on Cannery Row every Tuesday through Saturday. Jerry Winters is a warm and witty person who manages to warm up the entire audience during the show. Both he and Sioux visit with the crowds between sets and often refer to names and places they remember during the set.

The Bondurant Challenge Cup, an invitational race, will pit the top A, B, C, D, E Production and A Sedan divisional champions together in one race. Drivers will not be divided into classes but will compete against everyone in the race which will select a 30-car grid from 40 chosen qualifiers. UNDER THE OAKS & AMONG THE CACTI

By Mildred Hattan

CLEVER INVITATION read: "You are cordially invited to the greatest Gala Anniversary Party Carmel Valley has ever known. In honor of Grant and Julie Risdon, the greatest folks any kids could ever have . . ." and were accompanied by a map directing guests to a striped telephone pole landmark on Rancho Road . . . and in truth: "The most terrific anniversary party ever held in Carmel Valley!" according to Jeff Risdon, one of the organizers of the affair, "Everyone makes a big thing of the 25th or the 40th, so we just decided to be different and celebrate the 29th!"

Balloons, streamers, food and libations for the surprise celebration were put together by the honorees' daughter and husband, Cynthia and Paul Warren and their children, Alice, Julie, and Chris of Soquel, sons Jeff, Shone and Glen, and Miss Brenda Handy. A costumed Mariachi Band (Marty Avila's) was on hand to welcome over 100 guests, including Julie's college friends from Sunnyvale, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Sumner and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Green of Walnut Creek. Joe and Grant have a friendship which dates back to working their way around the world five times on the Dollar Steamship Lines. The Panetta Road residents met during World War II when Julie was stationed in England -- attached to a hospital -- with the Red Cross and Grant was stationed in Scotland with the Seabees. They were married in Exeter, England, in 1944 and have been Valley residents since 1948.

The Risdon children remembered the many happy memories shared over the years of Scotland, so in the midst of the afternoon's festivities an unbelievable sound was heard and across the fields -- under the oaks -- marched a kilt-clad, five-piece bagpipe and drum band which alternated throughout the party with the Mariachis (and eventually ended up "jamming" together in what had to be the wildest musical scene of the century!)

One of Grant's favorite stories has always been about crossing Loch Lomond in a skiff with an old Scottish doctor who sang, "On the Bonnie, Bonnie Banks of Loch Lomond." This had been related to the musicians and suddenly the bagpipes struck up the melody while one of the Mariachis, in his beautiful tenor voice, sang the lyrics of the lovely old ballad. This moving moment, among many others, will never be forgotten by the guests, who included: Messrs. and Mmes. Leon Stutzman, Ben Rees, Ross Gordon, Ralph Erion, Sal Weingarten, Fred Herdan, Howard Dean, Wolfgang Haas, Rafino Jiminez, Les Golden, Sam Corona, Richard Harvey, Sal Cardinali, Tom Hagen, Terry Stratton, Clyde Young, Karoll Smith, Kerry Rossiter, J. Goodwin, Victor Ushakoff and Karol Wild. Also the Misses Kathy Wilson, Esther Bird, Gladys Baylock, Chris Bohner, Lilly Gardner, Alice Michael, Edith Veres, Frances Golden, Mrs. Robert Schwartz and Dr. Nello Torri.

THE PERFECT GIFT for the gal who has everything . . . a grandchild -- her first -- was the happy surprise phoned to Rae Black via Grandfather Jack from their daughter and husband, Etta-Rae and Kenneth Barry. Master Kenneth Bryant Barry was the seven pound Oct. 2 birthday surprise for Rae, who has gone to Los Angeles to be with the baby and his parents for two weeks. The infant's father is a student at the University of Southern California Dental School. Paternal grandparents are Mrs. Myrtle Pendleberry of Blackfoot, Idaho and Ken Barry, Sr. of Redding. In addition to his Valley grandparents of Panetta Road, young Kenneth has three uncles residing there also -- Blaine, Carl and Mitch.

WHEN MRS. HELEN PARKER, 9500 Center St., Carmel Valley, followed directions in the Organic Garden column published in the Carmel Valley Outlook, little did she expect how large her tomato plant would grow. Mrs. Parker followed to the letter the advice of Organic Gardener columnist Lee Hall, and as a result this 15-foot Jack and the Bean Stalk type monstrosity grew. The huge tomato plant has had to be trimmed several times to prevent it from growing even larger. Photo by Randy Chappell.

A PETITE BLONDE -- six pounds, five ounces -- with a Scandavian background, arrived Oct. 7 at Community Hospital and has been given a melodious Swedish name which describes the beautiful spring blossoms on a lime tree -- Linnea Ann. Mr. and Mrs. John Estes and 3½-year-old Derik welcomed the baby girl, who arrived Sunday afternoon at Community Hospital. Two sets of San Francisco grandparents drove down on Monday for a preview of Linnea Ann. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest M. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Orville Estes were accompanied by the baby's aunt, Miss Cheryl Smith and a very special guest, her great grandmother, Mrs. Hilda Spence. Both are San Francisco residents.

A GRANDSON -- and a namesake -- a happy bonus announced this week by favorite Tulare County Music Director, John Farr and his wife, Katherine. Master Steven John Molinari weighed eight pounds, four ounces when he arrived Oct. 5, in Pleasanton, California. His mom, Kathy, attended Carmel schools, MPC, and graduated from San Jose State. His dad, Bob, also a San Jose State graduate, is a San Francisco fireman. Steven's paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Guido Molinari of San Rafael. The Farris welcomed their first grandchild just four months ago in Modesto, where David is the son of Dena and Bob Street. After Friday classes, Mr. Farr will drive to Pleasanton to meet the new arrival, who has been enjoying a visit with his grandmother. The Farris will continue on to Minden, Nevada, where they will share in the 60th wedding anniversary festivities of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F.C. Heise.

"AN OLD OAK leaf cluster" to Mrs. Thomas McKiernon and her hard working staff at the American Red Cross Blood Bank, and to the following donors who took time from their busy schedules to participate in the drawings held at the Carmel Valley Community Center: Martha Meadows, Alice Richmond, Gene Clutts, Chip Collins, Betty Hansen, Rev. It promises to be an interesting evening and Dr. Robert Whitehead, school principal and Mrs. John Von Berg, Parent-Faculty Club president, cordially invites you to attend.

FLAG FOOTBALL sponsored by the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center made its '73 debut last Saturday at the Tulare County Field on Pilot Road. Coach Herb Reuter gave this rundown to the Outlook on the first two games played in the series.

ROBLES RAIDERS 18 VIRGINIA WAY TIGERS 6 Raiders captain, Matt Nottenkamper; co-captain, Kurt Buche. Tigers captain, Brian Pearson; co-captain, Ronnie Alexander.

After exchange punts, the Tigers late in the first quarter scored on a fake pass option run by quarterback Brian Pearson. The conversion failed as Oli Voskay and Kurt Buche stopped the end sweep by Tiger halfback David Busick.

Two plays and 30 seconds before the end of the 1st quarter, a Buche to Nottenkamper pass connected as Matt did some fancy stepping and went for 35 yards and a tying rally. The extra point was voided by the fine pass defense of Raymond Cloyd.

The Tigers were strong on defense in the second quarter as

Dr. C. Winter Van Horn of Carmel Valley has just returned from the Annual Scientific Assembly of the American Academy of Family Physicians in Denver. The medical meeting began Oct. 1 and ran through Oct. 4. More than 3,500 family doctors participated in this once-a-year continuing education conclave.

At the Academy's ceremonies, held Tuesday evening, Oct. 2, Dr. Van Horn was awarded the degree of Fellow of the American Academy of Family Physicians. This honor is bestowed only on members who have completed 600 or more hours of credit in continuing medical education, or who have passed a special board examination, or both. With this award, Dr. Van Horn becomes one of the first diplomats of the Board of the AAFP in Monterey County.

Mike Cloyd, Ronnie Alexander and Danny Farrel thwarted the Raiders attack. The running and passing of Pearson was to no avail as Kurt Buche, Jeff Tehan and Art Muir respectfully stopped Tiger drives.

After receiving and returning a punt, the Raiders on three successive plays scored their second tally -- the conversion failed.

Excitement in the 4th quarter when a fake lightsweep and a cross back pass pattern reaped the Raiders 3rd tally. Pearson blocked the extra point. With only 30 seconds remaining in the game, Nottenkamper intercepted a Pearson pass and scampered 35 yards for the final score -- the conversion did not score.

BORONDA BRONCOS - 8, VALLE VISTA COWBOYS - 0

Broncos Captain, Barry Powell, Co-Captain, Chris Deoudes -- Cowboys Captain, Keven Sorri, Co-Captain, Carmelo Panetta

Defenses prevailed in the first quarter by Cowboys stalwarts, Donald Ascarate, Chris Panetta, and Ivan Collas. The Bronco defenders led by Tracy Park were Shah Shake, Mike Colvin and Louie Casarez. An errant pass from the center provided the Broncos with two points for a touchback.

Barry Powell crossed into the end zone in the third quarter only to have the play called back on a rule infraction. Powell took the ball again in the fourth quarter and ran forty yards on a right end sweep for a score. In the last moments of the game, Kevin Sorri began hitting his prime receiver Frank Collas but the gun sounded as the Cowboys drove deep into the Broncos territory.

How's your shorthand? It helps to be able to take notes fast and accurately at the Monterey Peninsula College course on Horses that meets Tuesday nights at Trail and Saddle Club. Not only does Gary Deter, instructor-veterinarian, have a lot to say but it's all good stuff. You don't want to miss any of it.

Tuesday, Oct. 9, Dr. Deter started the first of three lectures on conformation. He tells what is good. More importantly he tells what is bad--and why!

No horse is perfect but some are less perfect than others. If you know how a particular flaw is apt to affect a horse, you can estimate better the kinds of things you can do with this horse. Also, some "dysconformations" put such a strain on the horse that he is quite likely to go unsound. All of which harks back to the old principle: If you know what's going on, you can spare yourself a lot of grief.

Take a horse with a short thick neck, for instance. Dr. Deter describes this neck as going right down between the front legs. He says you can't turn this horse in a square section. (That's a big piece of land, mother.) You wouldn't fault this conformation too much in a child's pony but it isn't going to do a barrel racer much good.

Cribber's get a characteristic neck that stands out in a crowd. Cribbing is a vice where the horse braces his front teeth on a handy ledge and swallows air. All that bracing builds a set of muscles on either side of the horse's neck that the Air Force Exercises couldn't duplicate.

We used to believe that an ugly head did a horse no harm as long as the rest of the horse was okay. Dr. Deter pointed out, however, that a pig eyed horse has trouble seeing behind him and is apt to be spooky. A roman nosed horse has trouble seeing in front of him with both eyes at once. Roman nosed horses also seem to be more stubborn than a horse with a straight face.

A parrot mouthed horse--one with overbite of the upper jaw--cannot graze efficiently. He'll have to be fed hay that he can pick up.

White eyed horses used to be thought to be blind because they stumble a lot. They can see as well as horses with normal dark eyes but the white eye has no protection from sun or glare. The horse stumbles because he's trying to squint a little to protect his white eye.

Sixty-five per cent of a horse's weight is borne by his front legs; thirty-five per cent by his rear legs. The rear legs, however, are the folded up ones that provide the springing movement. Therefore, the front end receives most of the action. Think of the horse as a hammer where the front end is the heavy end and gets the most whamming around.

Conformation of the horse's front end and especially his front legs tells you lots about how he moves and how long maybe he'll keep on moving without breaking down.

The single most awful defect in conformation is calf knees. That's where a horse stands behind at the knees. This cocked backward stance puts the main weight bearing stress on the front edges of the carpal bones. That is the bones that are stacked up to form a horse's leg. The front edges weren't made to carry weight, so this horse is going to have problems.

When inspecting a horse for a prospective buyer, Dr. Deter looks for calf knees early in the examination. If the horse has calf knees and the buyer does not object to them it's hardly worth while to look for further flaws. A buyer schlemiel enough to accept calf knees would accept a horse who's a total klutz.

Dr. Deter showed X-rays of horse's knees that showed chips, and spurs of calcium growing on the horse's knee bones. The thing about horse's bone is that once it's disturbed, it tends to proliferate.

A splint is formed when a leg strain causes bleeding under the sheath covering the leg bone. The blood forms a clot, scar tissue invades the blood clot and then ossifies--turns to bone. Splints happen at either the second or fourth metacarpal. The cannon bone is the third metacarpal.

Sometimes longeing young horses puts too great a strain on their legs. All that hard work, always in a small circle causes the bones to move around just a little and sets up an irritation. The next thing you know, the colt has popped a splint.

When the splint is just starting to form, counter-irritation in the form of blistering or firing may force the leg to weld itself back together. Dr. Deter recommends X-raying the splint first to determine that there is not a fracture in the area. If a fracture were present, counter-irritation is counterindicated as being counter-productive and causing the horse to encounter uncountable grief. Take a squint--at the splint--before using--irritant!

WORK DAY SCHEDULED FOR COMMUNITY CENTER

There are fences to be mended, post holes to be dug, weeds to be pulled, leaves to be raked ... the list is endless, but the Community Center Board members are concerned that the Center be made ready for winter. The U.S. Army was sympathetic to the project and has reserved November 3 on their calendar to come and help ... won't you reserve it on YOURS? Entire families, clubs and organizations are invited to bring a sack lunch (CV Lions Club barbecue pit will be available for toasting hot dogs or marshmallows), rakes, shovels, and hoes, and spend the day assisting with the clean-up campaign.

CV WOMEN'S CLUB TO WELCOME NEWCOMERS

A "No-Host" cocktail party to welcome new residents to the Valley is planned for Sunday, October 14, 4-6 p.m. at Rancho Del Monte Resort by the Carmel Valley Women's Club. Chairman, Mrs. Phyllis Bingham has invited the Cypress Club Synchronized swimmers to perform at 4:30 and at 5:30. All Valley residents are invited to the "Get-Acquainted Affair."

CVFD AUXILIARY BAKE SALE

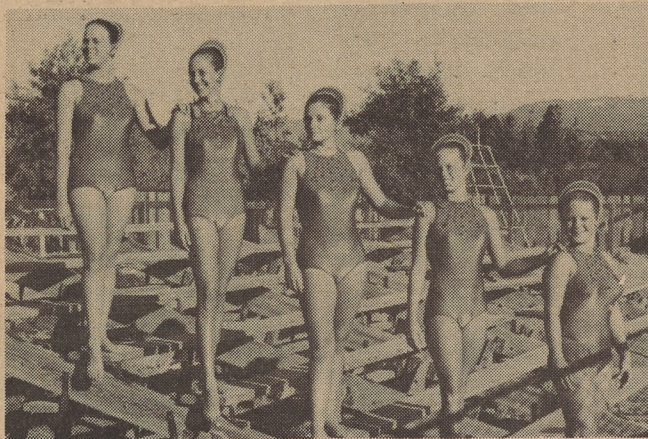

"The Sweetest Day" has been named by members of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Carmel Valley Volunteer Fire Department as Saturday, October 20 -- 9:30 until noon in front of the General Store. According to Mrs. John Radon, chairman of the venture, the name was selected because it is listed on a greeting card calendar but with no explanation ... so the Fire Belles are making it official with a baked goods sale. Also available and ideal for early Christmas gifts are the Auxiliary's Party Cookbooks recently published and featuring recipes used by the members at many of their successful parties.

BOY SCOUT VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Be a "good scout" ... call Jack George 659-2067, and volunteer your services to assist with the Carmel Valley Boy Scout program. Adult leadership is needed in both the Cubs and Boy Scouts of Troop No. 127.

WHITE CANE SALE OCT. 13-14

When Community Center Recreation Director Herb Reuter learned of the forthcoming White Cane Fund Drive sponsored annually by the Lions Club and the shortage of man-power among the Carmel Valley Lions he organized present and past members of his recreation program to assist with a door to door fund drive, beginning Saturday, Oct. 13 at 9:00 a.m. "We're reciprecating for all the contributions made over the years to the youth of the Valley through the Carmel Valley Community Center," stated Reuter in explaining his interest in helping the sight conservation cause. Charlie Gansel is chairman of the Valley Drive and emphasized that ALL donations are used for glasses, guide dogs, Braille equipment, eye surgery, etc. and none of the funds kept for club or civic projects. The Valley collections are being made under adult supervision ... please welcome the boys when they come to your door this Saturday.

MEMBERS OF THE CYPRESS Swim Club will perform some of their AAU award-winning synchronized swimming routines for the Carmel Valley Women's Club's "Get Acquainted" cocktail party at Rancho del Monte Country Club from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 14, according to program chairman, Mrs. C.E. Dickinson, and president, Mrs. Ernest Marshall. In charge of arrangements for the party, which will introduce the club's new members and their husbands to the rest of the group, are Mrs. Richard Dick and Mrs. Phyllis Bingham. Cypress swimmers pictured are (left to right): Bonnie Banker, Gerri Brandly, Kim Pilkenton, Kathryn Blevens, and Debbie Jameson. Photo by Donn Squire.

blood donors receive thanks

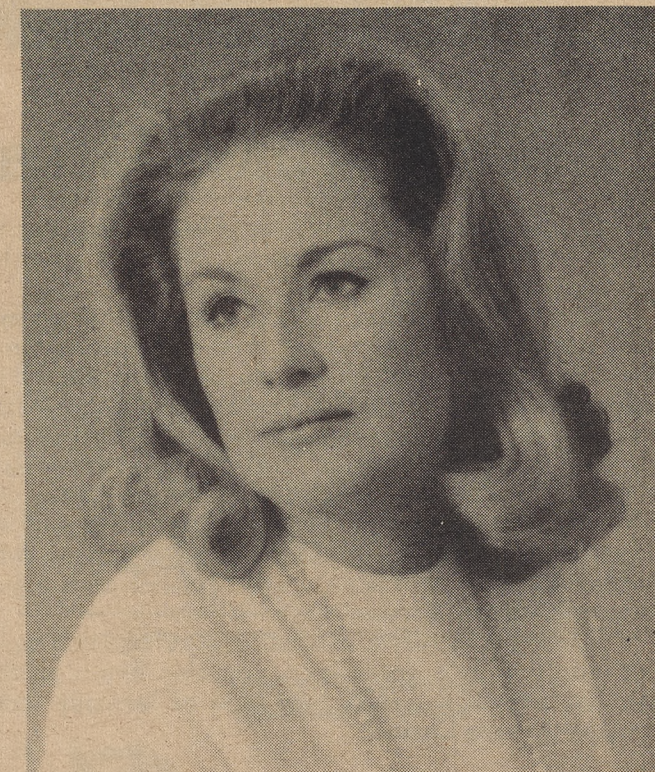

"I want to thank all the volunteers who helped with our recent blood drawing," Mrs. Marjorie McKiernon, American Red Cross Blood Program Chairman of Carmel Valley said today.

"We not only need our donors but we need the good reliable assistance which the dedicated volunteers always give. They are necessary to keep the program moving smoothly at all times," she added.

Volunteer workers were Violet Baldwin, Dr. J.D. Blacow, Lorelei Brock, Harriet Busick, Marjorie Foote, Doris Ford, Judy Gayman, Francina Gibbs, Catharine Harriman, Doreen McKenzie, Elsie Quentel, Nancy Reicks, Barbara Schaffer, Valerie Spaulding, Helen Thomsen, Kathryn Walker, June Wood.

Donors received complementary tickets to the Community Theatre's production, "Our Town" being presented at the Pacific Grove Art Center.

"We were a little disappointed that we didn't have a larger turnout of donors, as blood is so badly needed," Mrs. McKiernon said. "We also hope that, when people tell us they are coming and then find they are unable to be there, they will try to inform us prior to the day of the drawing so that we don't plan for so many more than show up."

padres romp marello prep, 34-14

By DAN HAFSTROM

THE CARMEL High School Padres varsity romped over Marello Preparatory School 34-14 Saturday in a display of superior skill and experience.

With first line quarterback Steve Falcon out of action due to an injured knee, the Marello Panthers relied on secondary quarterback Steve Morotti, a junior who usually plays at fullback; ace receiver Joe Williams at halfback; and fullback Tim Tedson to fill the gap between the team's size, experience and ability.

The Padres showed themselves to be in firm control of the game during the first half, when they kept their grip on the ball. They lost the ball to Marello twice by fumbles and twice through pass interceptions by Williams.

Marello also lost the ball to Carmel twice through fumbles.

Carmel quarterback Mike Chappell fumbled early in the first quarter at the Marello 29-yard line, temporarily halting the Padres march to the goal line. Marello failed to gain a first down and punted. The Padres were soon at the 14-yard line and back Scott Green carried the ball through the line for a touchdown. Dave Hunter's kick was good.

After Marello failed to gain a first after the kickoff, the Padres pushed up to the 15-yard line and Green again carried the ball into the end zone for another touchdown. Hunter's kick was good again.

The Panthers regained possession when Williams intercepted a Chappell pass to Hunter. But forced back a yard to their own seven, the Panthers again punted. Williams' kick was feeble; travelling as far as the 15, then bouncing back to the five before it was downed.

Hunter carried the ball around the right side for another touchdown. The kick was good.

With less than 10 seconds remaining in the half, fumbles again led to a touchdown.

Chappell passed to Hunter, but it bounced off Hunter's chest and again into William's hands at the Carmel 38. On the next play, Morotti was hit and dropped the ball. Scott Green grabbed it on the first bounce and, his long blond hair fluttering behind him, ran unmolested to another touchdown. Hunter was unable to kick because the snap was high.

AFTER THE HALF, the game returned to normal. With the game in their pockets, the Padres worked on their passing and allowed the Panthers two touchdowns.

Utilizing another pass interception and a 15-yard unsportsmanlike conduct penalty against Carmel, Marello moved up to the Carmel 21-yard line.

Morotti started a run to the right, but stopped just short of the line of scrimmage and passed to Williams in the end zone. The same play was repeated to the left for two extra points.

Marello managed to put together a drive that took them from their own 25-yard line up to the Carmel seven through a combination of lax Carmel defense and exercising a pitch option to running backs Mike Butler or Williams or short passes to Williams.

Morotti again started a run, but passed to Williams in the end zone.

Carmel scored again when Rick Parker intercepted a pass and ran to the Marello 27. Chappell completed a short pass to Rich Fleming over the center and, shaking a few tackles, Fleming crossed the goal line for the final touchdown.

"Morotti only had one week to get set as quarterback," said Marello coach Norm Costa. He explained that because there were few returning varsity players this year, the team suffers from a lack of experience, especially in the line.

Marello's junior varsity defeated Carmel 6-0 earlier in the afternoon.

Carmel meets Gonzales 2 p.m. Saturday at Carmel High School in what coach Jason Harbert feels may be Carmel's toughest game this season.

CARMEL'S Scott Green (26) pushes past Marello's Steve Morotti with help from Mike Ford (43) for the first of three touchdowns he made for Carmel Saturday as the Padres squashed Marello 34-14 in their first game in the Mission Trails Athletic League this season.
